Why this study? New England is Unique!

- Rapid growth, collaboration, and shared learning
- Research Questions:
  - What factors facilitated the regional diffusion of CSA policy in New England?
    - How did the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston contribute to the spread of CSA policy?
    - How can the New England experience inform other regions of the U.S. seeking to develop CSA policy?
- Survey (n=23)
- Interviews (n=25) (6 states, Boston Fed, and national org)

- 2002: ME: NextStep Initial and Annual 529 matching grants launched
- 2003: ME: Harold Alfond College Challenge (HACC) pilot launched in one hospital
- 2008: ME: Inversant CSA pilot launched
- 2009: RI: CollegeBound Matching program launched
- 2010: RI: CollegeBound Baby $100 seed introduced
- 2013: RI: CollegeBound Baby $100 seed introduced
- 2014: CT: CHET Baby Scholars launched
- 2015: CT: CHET began including checkbox form to receive info about program with birth certificate application. Enrollments jumped from 7% to 35%.
- 2016: RI: Coos County, NH: Centsible Families launched
- 2017: MA: SoarMA 2-year pilot to launch in middle schools in 5 cities

Literature: Policy Frameworks to understand the spread of CSAs

- Policy Diffusion
  - Economic competition
  - Social learning

- Collective Impact
  - Community aspiration
  - Strategic learning
  - High-leverage activities
  - Inclusive community engagement
  - Container for change
Findings: Advancing CSA policy in your state

Importance of factors in advancing CSA policy in your state

- Regional CSA Consortium led by the BostonFed: 23
- Individual leaders’ skill and dedication: 18
- Political landscape: 14
- Learning about specific CSA programs’ best practices: 18
- Results of research or evaluation: 14
- Ability to replicate specific features of legislation from neighboring state: 14

Respondents were asked to rate each factor on a scale of 1 to 5.
The New England CSA Consortium

▪ A “container for change” and social learning
  ▪ Sharing research, information, and best practices
  ▪ Facilitates communication and problem-solving

▪ The results
  ▪ Faster, more successful start-up process
  ▪ Culture of innovation
  ▪ Shared regional vision

I really can’t underplay the role the Fed has had for us in helping to launch our program. They helped, you know, raise the questions that we didn’t necessarily know needed answering… I had a couple states come up to me and go, ‘Oh my God, I can’t believe you’ve just launched and you’ve already done x, y, and z.’ And I said, you know, ‘It’s because we came to these meetings and we learned from all of you.’

[Interview 14]
New England’s shared vision / community aspiration

- Spark children’s college expectations

  CSAs are “a really powerful tool to shift mindsets in kids and teachers throughout a kid’s education, that can make a really big difference in how kids conceptualize their chances and ability to go to college.” — [Interview 19]

- Reach families

  “We know and have witnessed that families who have some form of savings for college put a greater emphasis and value of education in their family decision making.” — [Interview 9]

- Improve the state economy

  “In every state, the more educated your citizens are, the more financially sound the whole state is.” — [Interview 5]
Tailoring your message: the case for CSAs

<tr>
<td></td>
<td>In areas where going to college is not in the “ethos,” it can be helpful to emphasize earning a credential that enables people to earn a living wage (Interview 22).</td>

Role of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston

- Backbone organization
- Convener
- Technical assistance provider
- “Wind at the back” of existing efforts

Extent to which Federal Reserve Bank of Boston has furthered your CSA policy work

- Very substantially: 6
- Substantially: 7
- Moderately: 4
- Minimally: 1
- Not at all: 1

Respondents could select more than one option
Cultivating CSAs: Share Seeds

- Seeds: concrete ideas, tidbits of knowledge, promising practices, decisions and trade-offs

“I’m on a learning curve where my knuckles are white every day, which is exactly where I want to be, and I think it’s where the program deserves to be.”

[Interview 7]
Cultivating CSAs: “Climate”

- Open communication and relationship-building

  “...Being able to bounce ideas off of other people and have them say to me, you know, ‘Don’t try that. That’s stupid. We already tried it, and it fell flat on its face,’ or, ‘Yes, try this, it’s a much better way.’ That is totally invaluable to me.”
  [Interview 7]

- Shared regional aspirations and identity

  “Without the ability to look at that from a regional perspective...the worldview would be too small. We really benefit from being able to think of things from a much broader perspective and to learn from people who are dealing with the unique challenges of each of their states or their areas.”
  [Interview 9]
Cultivating CSAs: Cultivators

- Key legislators, funders, program experts, and advocates across the region supporting growth of CSAs in their own state and beyond
  - “Joint program” of Governor and Treasurer in CT – Governor highlighted CSAs in State of the State address
  - 529 Servicer in RI – idea for CollegeBound Baby
  - Harold Alfond in ME - $500 to each grandchild
  - Anthony Poore of Boston Fed – the “driving force”
Cultivating CSAs: the Perfect Storm

- Synergy of support from multiple stakeholders in a specific timeframe that allows policy to advance
  - Rhode Island: RI Higher Education Assistance Authority, Health Department (working to update birth certificate form), and Secretary of Health
    - 2015 checkbox opt-in procedure
    - Led to fourfold increase in enrollment in CollegeBound Baby
  - Connecticut: Treasurer’s office, 529 Provider, and Department of Public Health
    - CHET Baby Scholars staff member “happened to be sitting across the table” from Governor’s staffers ➔ Immediate change to birth certificate made to include opt-in procedure
    - Enrollment increased from approx 8 – 35% “overnight”
