A SparkPoint perspective

September 18, 2012

SPARKPOINT

Grow and Prosper.

United Way of the Bay Area

What is SparkPoint?

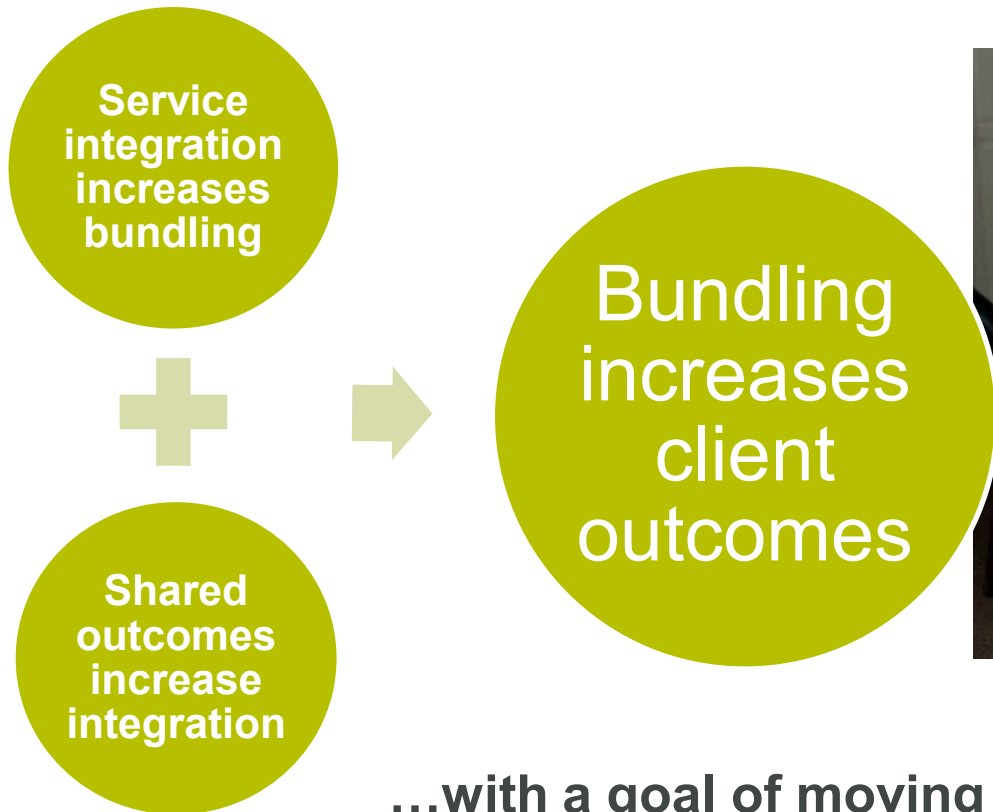

SparkPoint integrates best-in-class services at one-stop financial centers designed to help create pathways out of poverty for low- and moderate-income clients.

What is the goal of SparkPoint?

We're testing a model ...

...with a goal of moving as many individuals to financial stability as possible.

What does financial stability mean?

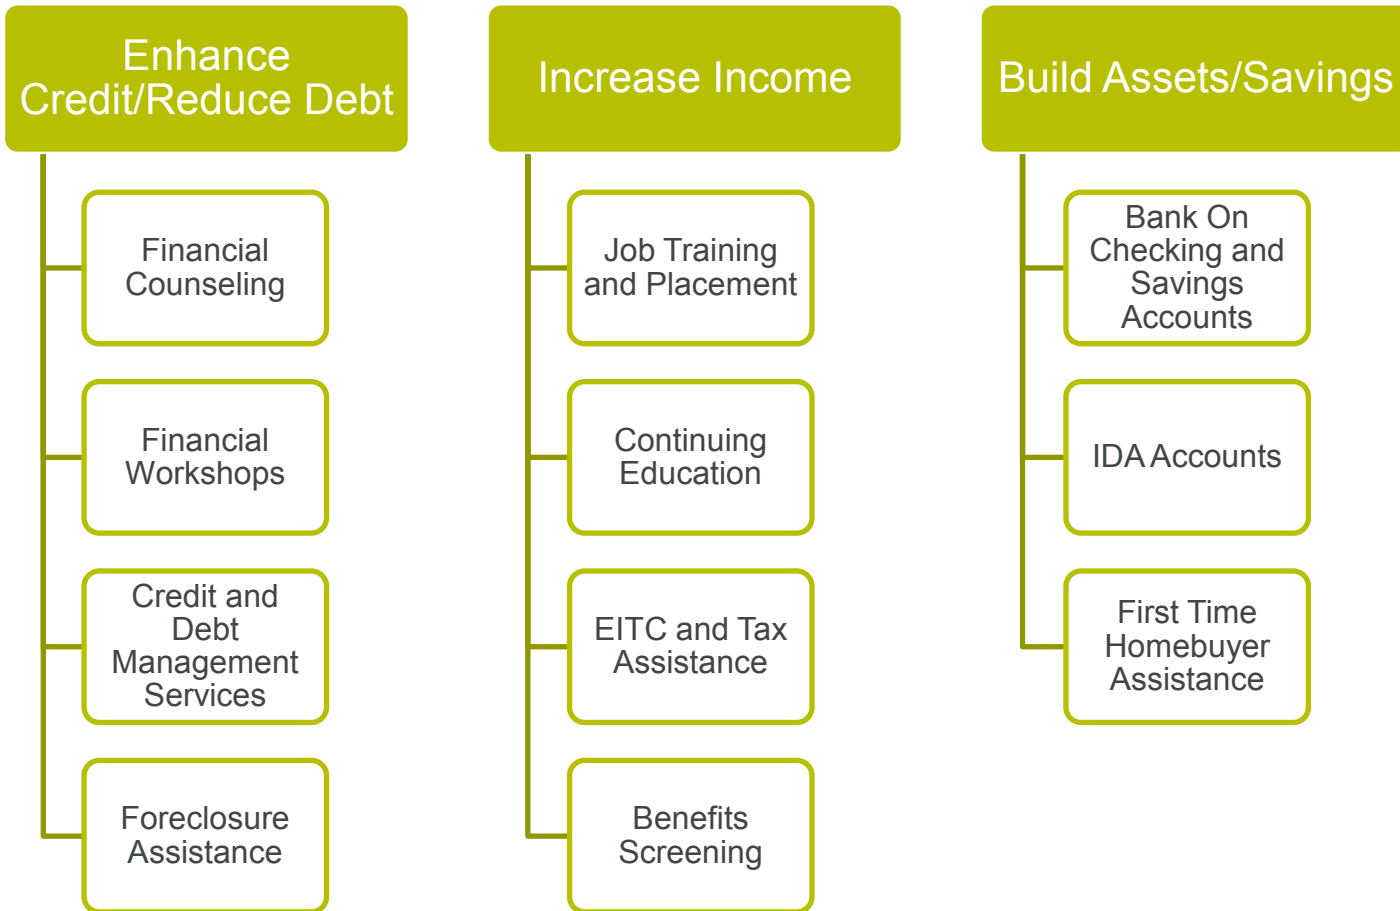

MEASURING OUTCOMES

All Centers share a primary goal of helping individuals achieve a goal of financial stability, as defined by

- 1 Livable income that reaches the Self-Sufficiency Standard (i.e., $65,000 for a family of four in San Francisco)
- 2 Good credit score of 650 or above
- 3 Savings equal to three months of living expenses
- 4 Debt less than 40% of monthly income

Shared outcomes support service integration. Partners decide which services will lead to these outcomes for their clients.

How do people reach financial stability?

Research from the field shows great promise for the model

Elements of Service Integration

What do we know so far?

Bundling matters.

Long-Term Outcomes

Outcome	Single Service	2+ Services
Self-sufficient income	25%	75%
Credit score 650+	34%	66%
40% or better DTI	34%	66%
3 months of savings	25%	75%

- 73% of measurable clients who made progress were bundlers
- 65-75% of measurable clients who achieve any long-term outcome were bundlers
- Bundlers made up 60-80% of the clients who increased their vocational skills, obtained post-secondary education, obtained or maintained employment, obtained or maintained public benefits, and improved their budgeting skills

For partners

- It creates greater impact for the client
- It helps organizations deliver on their missions
- It leverages existing resources in new ways
- It brings new resources and knowledge to the table
- It's a chance to build something together
- It's an effective way to work together differently
- Partners talk about the work differently
